Processing data from job applicants allows the Trust to manage the selection process, assess and confirm a candidate's suitability for employment and decide to whom to offer a job. The Trust may also need to process data from job applicants to respond to and defend against legal claims.

The Trust processes health information if it needs to make reasonable adjustments to the recruitment process for candidates who have a disability. This is to carry out its legal obligations and exercise specific rights in relation to employment.

Where we process other special categories of data, such as information about ethnic origin, sexual orientation, religion or belief, gender re-assignment and age status this is to fulfil our legal obligations to carry out equal opportunities monitoring as permitted by the Data Protection Act 2018.

Applicants are entirely free to decide whether or not to provide such data and there are no consequences of failing to do so. This data is kept secure with limited access only by specific HR individuals. Equality data is not shared with line management or other employees. For candidates offered employment with the Trust, the Trust is obliged to seek information about criminal convictions and offences. Where the Trust seeks this information, it does so because it is necessary for it to carry out its legal obligations in respect of safeguarding vulnerable groups and exercise specific rights in relation to employment/comply with a regulatory requirement to establish whether or not an individual has committed an unlawful act or been involved in dishonesty or other improper conduct.

If your application is unsuccessful, the Trust may request to keep your personal data on file in case there are future employment opportunities for which you may be suited. The Trust will ask for your consent before it keeps your data for this purpose and you are free to withdraw your consent at any time by contacting us on HR@tenaxschoolstrust.co.uk

Who has access to data

With the exception of the equality information, your information will be shared internally for the purposes of the recruitment exercise. This includes members of the HR and recruitment team, interviewers involved in the recruitment process, managers in the faculty area with a vacancy, and IT staff if access to the data is necessary for the performance of their roles.

The Trust will not share your data with third parties (unless where recruitment agencies have been used), unless your application for employment is successful and it makes you an offer of employment. The Trust will then share your data with former employers to obtain references for you (unless already carried out pre-interview with your consent), employment background check providers to obtain necessary background checks and the Disclosure and Barring Service to obtain necessary criminal records checks.

The Trust does not under normal circumstances transfer your data outside the European Economic Area (EEA).

If you are making your application from outside the EEA it may be necessary as part of the recruitment process for us to request information from recruitment agencies/referees/employment eligibility agencies who are outside the EEA. As with all data sharing arrangements efforts to maintain security of your personal data will be paramount.

Your consent will be sought for data sharing prior to it taking place outside the EEA. You are able to refuse/withdraw consent at any time.
